More financial help needed for ambulance subsidy

Elk Point ratepayers are not complaining about picking up the tab for half of the Elk Point Ambulance subsidy, but Mayor Ed Buck is hoping that adjoining jurisdictions will sign agreements allowing the service to answer calls in their areas, and in exchange, will help the Town and the County of St. Paul to cover the cost. Many residents of these jurisdictions are closer to Elk Point than to hospitals in their own areas, in case of an emergency.

The Ambulance Committee met with representatives of the three major oil companies in the area recently. The companies, who pay taxes on their properties to the counties in which they are located, feel that ambulance service is a municipal responsibility.

One of the adjoining municipalities does not exclude Elk Point Ambulance from serving their area, but have said they do not wish to help finance it or sign a contract as they have a contract with another operator to cover their county.

It was suggested at Elk Point's Town Council meeting last week that residents in areas of that county living near Elk Point, as well as the oil companies who pay taxes to that county, may wish to put pressure on their council to change their mind in this regard.

Council generous to local groups

Elk Point Town Council showed their generosity to local groups at their August regular meeting, when they approved four grants to assist with water and tax bills.

Elk Point Golf and Country Club sent a delegation to the meeting, to ask Council for forgiveness of their water bills for this year, as the extensive renovations to the course have resulted in greater than normal water use and tight finances. Council later decided to give the Golf Club a $3500 grant from the recreation budget to help out their finances.

Three groups who had asked for forgiveness of taxes on their facilities also received grants to pay the Education portion of their tax bills. The municipal portion of taxes will be forgiven for the Pioneer Circle Seniors, Elk Point Elks Lodge and Elk Point Curling Club.

In other business coming before Council this month, the Town's Water and Sewer bylaw received two amendments. All new sewer line service installations and sewer line service replacements must install outside cleanouts, and on all new building construction or weeping tile replacement, water from weeping tile cannot be discharged into the sanitary sewer line.

A request for a driveway off 46 Street was denied because of potential problems with spring runoff.

A contract for the installation of parking plug-ins for aircraft and motion lights for the airport terminal was awarded to Albi Electric.

Owners of a home which suffered sewer backup problems three times in one week-end were given a partial reimbursement of their cleanup costs.

Fencing, facelift planned for East Cemetery

Elk Point's East Cemetery will be undergoing an extensive program of fencing and facelifting in the near future.

Property owned by the Town which is outside the current cemetery will be enclosed by the new fence, and an area will be designated for the planting of memorial trees.

Council has discussed the provision of perpetual care of gravesites, and would welcome any donations toward the ongoing upkeep of the cemetery. Another possibility for funding would be to include a levy for cemetery upkeep in the tax bills.

Concern with the way the recent fire at Phil's Hardware was fought was expressed in a letter sent to Council by a local resident. The matter will be reviewed by Council.

Complaints have been noted regarding weeds in alleys and utility corridors, and will be looked into by the Public Works Department.

Value Added meeting tomorrow

Do you have an idea for a food product you feel can be effectively marketed? Maybe you have an idea how an agricultural product could be processed.

You may even have an existing food product you dream about manufacturing and selling commercially.

Every dream is worth considering.

A public meeting for area residents interested in food processing or value added agricultural product processing has been set for 7 p.m. on Wednesday, August 21, in the Empress Banquet Room. The meeting will explore the possibilities of capitalizing on the food production capabilities of the region and is jointly sponsored by Elk Point Chamber of Commerce, St. Paul/Smoky Lake Business and Community Development Corporation and Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development. The meeting is being organized as a direct result of recent food processing workshops sponsored by the Northern Alberta Development Council in north-east Alberta.

Everyone is welcome to attend. Come and explore the possibilities of fulfilling your dreams.

Neighbors are important people

By Deanna Easthope

FCSS Director

"Who is my neighbor?" We all have read about this question being asked in the New Testament of the Bible. For the answer to that question, Jesus told the parable of the Good Samaritan. At the conclusion of the parable, we learn that a neighbor is a person who gets involved with a person close by who needs him.

As we think of our neighbors, we could probably make a long list of ways they are important to each of us. What would we do without our neighbors? They make our community a better place to live in. Their friendliness and concern for our well-being makes our day.

Do you remember the story of "The King's Highway?"

Once a king had a great highway built for the members of his kingdom. After it was completed, but before it was opened to the public, the king decided to have a contest. He invited as many as desired to participate. Their challenge was to see who could travel the highway best.

On the day of the contest, the people came. Some of them had fine chariots, some had fine clothing, fine hairdos, or great food. Some young men came in their track clothes and ran along the highway. People travelled the highway all day, but each one, when he arrived at the end, complained to the king that there was a large pile of rocks and debris left on the road at one spot, and this got in their way and hindered their travel.

At the end of the day, a lone traveller crossed the finish line and wearily walked over to the king. He was tired and dirty, but he addressed the king with great respect and handed him a bag of gold. He explained, "I stopped along the way to clear away a pile of rocks and debris that was blocking the road. This bag of gold was under it all, and I want you to return it to its rightful owner."

The king replied, "You are the rightful owner."

The traveller replied, "Oh, no, this is not mine. I've never known such money."

"Oh yes," said the king, "you've earned this gold, for you won my contest. He who travels the road best is he who makes the road smoother for those who will follow."

I like this story, because I think we have many neighbors in our community who have made our community a better place to live in. Our neighbors truly are important people. Our lives have been influenced by your neighborliness. Thank you!

Specialized services for seniors now available

In an effort to better serve seniors, designated government offices across Alberta will now provide more specialized services for seniors. Seniors can obtain personal assistance in filling out forms, finding out about programs or reviewing their files.

One of the nine designated offices is in the St. Paul Provincial Building. This makes personal service within a reasonable distance for most seniors in the area. The office is located in Room 318, 5025-49 Avenue, St. Paul. Their staff will be pleased to help you. You may also contact the Alberta Seniors Benefit Information Line at 1-800-642-3853.

TIC Talk

Information is a two-way street

By Sherry Pelech

Tourist Information Clerk

Information can be a two-way street as we continually find out from the tourists that visit us at the TIC. We are always amazed at the bits of information people leave behind. Our favorite to date is this little gem "Did you know that when it rains, the new sites out at Ross Lake get WET and SOGGY?" No! Really? We can't even begin to imagine how THAT happens.

But there are other things as well.

Did you know "when pelicans fly in a row it is the leader who sets the rhythm for their flapping"? "First the leader flaps his wings, followed by the number two pelican, followed by number three and so on down the line. Then the leader pauses, followed by number two, etc." We checked this out and it's true. It looks kind of like an airborne kick-line. Set it to can-can music and you could entertain the troops.

Did you know they are building a Barn Museum near Olds in southern Alberta? They are bringing in different types of barns from all over the west and restoring them. (We'd personally like to see them trying to transport one of those big boys with the six foot high stone foundations.)

Did you know "the Whitney Lakes Provincial Parks is run-down, dirty and unkept?" (We're not making any accusations, but when people always find garbage wherever they camp, often they bring a lot of it with them.)

We learned something interesting from the following conversation we had just recently: Them: "We're from New Zealand. I'll bet you don't get many people from down there."

Us (naively): "Well, we had a couple of people in from Australia this year."

Them (scathingly): "Australia! Are you aware that Australia is 1200 miles from us?" (We weren't.)

Us (apologetically): "Sorry."

Them: "I don't know why you people always lump us together with the Australians."

Us People (again): "Sorry."

We learned from that little exchange that Australia and New Zealand are 1200 miles apart and us people shouldn't lump them together.

Did you know "you can get Alberta maps for FREE down in Cochrane?" (That may be so, but you'd burn a lot more than $1.49 worth of gas driving down to get one.)

These and other bits we have added to our store of knowledge and will contemplate them during the cold winter months. (Yeah, right!)

See you next year.

Parenting for Life

What's wrong with spanking?

By Teresa Pitman

Today's Parent Magazine

"I was spanked as a child, and it didn't do me any harm."

As parents, we have a natural tendency to raise our children the way we were raised. After all, that's what we know. But attitudes to violence in our society are changing. We no longer think it's okay for husbands to hit their wives, or for employers to strike their workers. So, as one child asked, "Why is it okay to hit kids, when you can't hit anyone else?"

Some parents rely on spanking because they feel it's more effective than many forms of discipline. And in the short term, it may, indeed, get results. But it's important for parents to keep the long-term point of view, and to consider some of the serious problems with spanking.

*Spanking teaches children that it's okay to hit.

Children learn far more from our example than from our words. Children who are spanked are more likely to hit other children.

*Parents can easily spank harder than they mean to.

Children can be seriously hurt when their parents get "carried away" — which may happen, for example, after an especially stressful day. Other parents find that as children grow bigger, they have to hit harder and harder to make the spanking effective.

*The child tends to focus on the punishment, not the behaviour he needs to change.

So the child who is spanked for running into the road will often just try to make sure he doesn't get caught next time; he hasn't thought about why the road is dangerous.

*Spanking creates anger and resentment in the child.

This hurts the relationship between parent and child. It also gets in the way of learning; it's hard to consider your own behavior when you're full of anger at someone else.

*Spanking stops working as the child gets older.

Once your child is bigger than you or no longer afraid of the pain of a spanking, this punishment loses its effectiveness. Then what?

Many parents who would prefer not to spank their children wonder how they can handle discipline issues without physical punishment to fall back on. There are many ways to help children learn appropriate behavior that don't involve hitting. For example, a preschooler who runs into the street while playing in the front yard could be brought back into the house. An older child who rides his bike recklessly could lose the use of his bike for a time. Learning about other ways to handle discipline can give you more options when you don't know what to do.

Even parents who are strongly against spanking can "lose it" and hit a child. If that happens, you can always apologize. Let him know that you were upset about what happened, and that you don't think hitting other people is right. Parents make mistakes, too, and your children will have more respect for you, not less, if you can admit to yours.

The latest new adult and juvenile fiction

By Michele Ducek

Librarian

Stay tuned to this space next week for a report on the CAMP READSALOT Camp-out at the library (that is, if I survive the experience).

More new titles in adult fiction:

Clay Taggart is a mine surveyor who dreams of becoming a teacher. Just as he is beginning to fall in love with feisty Jackie Fontaine, a tragedy strikes that causes Jackie to withdraw into herself in Where the Wild Rose Blooms by Lori Wick.

Running Fawn loved her way of life among the Blackfoot people but when she is chosen to be one of the young people sent away to the Mission Boarding School, she fears that way of life is coming to an end in Drums of Change by Janette Oke.

The brutal murder of a Los Angeles heart surgeon appears more complicated the more Pete Decker and his team investigate in Prayers for the Dead by Faye Kellerman.

Servant of the Bones by Anne Rice introduces the reader to Azriel, ghost, demon, angel, and traces his life from his mortal youth in the city of Babylon, his transformation into a genii, and his journey to the Manhattan of the 1990s.

A few new titles in our juvenile series:

It appears that someone may be stalking the campers at Camp Echo Mountain and Elizabeth is determined to discover if this is the truth in Camp Killer from Sweet Valley High.

Little Juliana Riccoli is having horrible nightmares about a monster but Elizabeth suspects something or someone is behind it in Too Scared to Sleep from Sweet Valley Twins, the first book in a four-part miniseries.

The second book in the miniseries is called The Beast

Is Watching You. The Riccoli kids' nightmares start to come true and Jessica, Elizabeth and all their friends are becoming too scared to babysit them.

The Bailey School Kids suspect that the new librarian may be the great wizard Merlin in Wizards Don't Need Computers. After all, he has a long white beard, a magic wand, and a fish named Arthur.

The clumsy new softball coach keeps wrapping his injuries in bandages and some of the team suspect he may be a mummy in Mummies Don't Coach Softball from the Bailey School Kids.

After Stevie gets hit on the head she begins to have dreams that come true. When she has a scary vision, her friends hope it was all coincidence in Dream Horse from The Saddle Club.

Stevie has been grounded and her friends devise a wacky plan to get her back riding and get her revenge on her brother in Tight Rein, also from The Saddle Club.

IT WAS A DARK AND STORMY NIGHT ON THE LONELY MOOR -- Storyteller Merle Harris enthralled her large crowd of listeners with a variety of exciting campfire tales at a special event sponsored by Northern Lights Library System in conjunction with the Camp Reads-alot Summer Reading Program.

Not enough magic for Hocus Pocus in Niagara Falls

■ Fourth place still impressive

A mixed slo-pitch team made up of players from St. Paul, Ashmont and Elk Point have been crowned the nations fourth best team.

From August 1 to 5 Hocus Pocus were in Niagara Falls, Ontario competing in the Coors

COED "D" National Tournament. The team earned the right to play for All-Canadian honors after winning a provincial tournament in Leduc last September.

A total of 36 teams were in contention when the first call of "play ball" rang out. The local team finished the preliminary round robin play with a record of 4 and 1, which allowed them to continue on to the playoff round.

In the playoffs, Hocus Pocus won their first game, lost a close one in their second match and were triumphant in their third game before bowing out in the semifinals. The loss gave the team a very respectable fourth place finish.

Storyteller charms Camp Reads-alot listeners

Storyteller Merle Harris held a group of close to 60 Camp Reads-alot participants, adults and children with an hour of campfire stories last Wednesday evening, under the sponsorship of the Northern Lights Library System. The special storytime followed a very enjoyable wiener roast sponsored by the Elk Point Public Library.

Ms Harris started off with nursery rhymes with a modern twist, and then told the tale of Timothy, who spent the summer at his Grandmother's farm, but wanted all the animals to share his huge bed with him.

An African folk tale of the long ago, when ears, eyes, arms and legs were not attached, told how the body parts chased down and killed an antelope, only to argue over whose it was. The tribal chief, who was called upon to decide, cooked and ate it, and to teach the parts another lesson about sharing, fastened them all together forever.

Ghost stories are always popular at campfire time, and Ms Harris' first was about a young man who found a hospitable inn when he was caught in the dark and rain on a lonely moor. After hanging up his backpack and eating dinner, he went to bed, only to awake to find his room on fire. He escaped and ran to a nearby farm, where he was told the only inn in the area had burned down a hundred years before. When he returned to the site, there was his backpack, hanging on a charred fragment of wall atop the ruins...

Another ghost story came from Japan, where Ah Sung, a very brave man, went out and caught a ghost who was bent on pursuing him. Yet another was about a man nothing pleased, who found a wife with a golden arm, which pleased him although the woman didn't. When she died, he stole her arm and put it under his bed, but she came back to get it and ... he was never seen again!

A story of courage in the jungle and how a father and his boy scared off a tiger they didn't even see, wound up the evening.

A draw for a prize package including a backpack, cap, t-shirt, book, game and more was won by Cathy Olstad.
